7 UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
8 WESTERN DISTRICT OF WASHINGTON
9 AT SEATTLE

10 JULIO CURY, et al.,

CASE NO. C23-0499JLR

11 Plaintiffs,

ORDER

12 v.

13 UNITED STATES DEPARTMENT
14 OF STATE, et al.,

15 Defendants.

16 I. INTRODUCTION

17 Before the court are cross-motions for summary judgment filed by (1) Defendants
18 the United States Department of State (“State”) and the Department of Homeland
19 Security (together, “Defendants) and (2) Plaintiffs Julio Cury and Takao Yamada 20 (together, “Plaintiffs”). (State MSJ (Dkt. # 21); Pls. Resp. (Dkt. # 38); Pls. Cross-MSJ

21 //

1 (Dkt. # 40);¹ State Reply (Dkt. # 41); Pls. Reply (Dkt. # 42).) The court has considered
 2 the parties' submissions, the relevant portions of the record, and the governing law.
 3 Being fully advised,² the court GRANTS Defendants' motion for summary judgment and 4 DENIES Plaintiffs' cross-motion for summary judgment.

5 II. BACKGROUND

6 This case arises under the Freedom of Information Act ("FOIA"). (See generally 7 Compl. (Dkt. # 1).) Plaintiffs originally asserted claims arising from five requests for 8 information they made to State and to the Department of Homeland Security ("DHS") 9 and its sub-agencies. (See id.) They now, however, challenge only State's response to 10 one of their requests. (See Pls. Resp. at 1.) The court sets forth the factual and 11 procedural background relevant to Plaintiffs' remaining claim below.

12 Mr. Cury is a citizen and resident of the Dominican Republic, and Mr. Yamada is 13 a legal resident of Washington State. (Compl. ¶¶ 3-4.) In 2022, State revoked Mr.
 14 Cury's B-1/B-2 nonimmigrant visa,³ citing Mr. Cury's alleged commission of a crime of 15 moral turpitude. (Id. ¶ 9.) On October 1, 2022, Plaintiffs submitted a FOIA request to 16 State for "copies of all records, including emails, pertaining to the revocation of the visa

18 ¹ Plaintiffs' response to State's motion for summary judgment and Plaintiffs' cross-
 19 motion for summary judgment are nearly identical. (Compare Pls. Resp.; with Pls. Cross-MSJ.)
 For simplicity, the court generally cites only Plaintiffs' response to State's motion in this order.

20 ² Plaintiffs request oral argument; Defendants do not. The court finds that oral argument will not assist it in resolving the parties' motions. See Local Rules W.D. Wash. LCR 7(b)(4).

21 ³ A B-1/B-2 visa allows a nonimmigrant to enter the United States temporarily for a combination of business and tourism purposes. See U.S. Department of State – Bureau of Consular Affairs, Visitor Visa, <https://travel.state.gov/content/travel/en/us-visas/tourism-visit/visitor.html> (last visited July 29, 2025).

1 previously held by Mr. Cury.” (Id. ¶ 10; Kootz Decl. (Dkt. # 22) ¶ 6, Ex. 2.) State
 2 acknowledged receipt of the request and assigned it control number F-2023-00026.
 3 (Compl. ¶ 11; Kootz Decl. ¶ 7.) On January 5, 2023, State informed Plaintiffs that it had 4 located 89 records responsive to Request F-2023-00026. (Kootz Decl. ¶ 8 & n.1.) State
 5 then released one document in full and 30 documents in part. (Id. ¶ 8; see id. ¶ 5, Ex. 1
 6 (Vaughn index⁴.) It withheld 58 documents in full. (Id. ¶ 8.) On February 28, 2023,
 7 Plaintiffs appealed State’s response. (Compl. ¶ 13.) They filed this lawsuit on April 3, 8 2023, after receiving no substantive response to their appeal. (Id. ¶ 14.)

9 The parties met and conferred for several months after Plaintiffs initiated this 10 action in an effort to narrow the issues remaining for the court’s decision. (See generally 11 Dkt. (granting multiple stipulations to extend deadlines).) Then, after State filed its 12 motion for summary judgment on October 11, 2024, the parties sought several extensions 13 of the briefing deadlines as they continued to narrow the issues. (State MSJ; see 14 generally Dkt.) Plaintiffs filed their response to State’s motion for summary judgment 15 and cross-motion for summary judgment on March 25, 2025. (Pls. Resp.; Pls. Cross-16 MSJ.) In their response and cross-motion, Plaintiffs state that they “are limiting” their 17 challenge in this action to State’s allegedly wrongful withholding of documents created 18 before December 31, 2011 that pertain to the revocation of Mr. Cury’s visa under FOIA

20 ⁴ Under FOIA, an agency must “notify the person making [a] request of [its] 21 determination and the reasons therefor[.]” 5 U.S.C. § 552(a)(6)(A)(i)(I). An agency may do so 22 by providing a Vaughn index, in which it must “(1) identify each document withheld; (2) state the statutory exemption claimed; and (3) explain how disclosure would damage the interests protected by the claimed exemption.” See Sea Shepherd Legal v. Nat’l Oceanic & Atmospheric Admin., 516 F. Supp. 3d 1217, 1228 (W.D. Wash. 2021).

1 Exemption 3 and § 222(f) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (“INA”), codified at 8
 2 U.S.C. § 1202(f). (Pls. Resp. at 1; Pls. Cross-MSJ at 1.) The motions are now fully 3 briefed and ripe for decision.

4 III. ANALYSIS

5 State argues that the court should grant its motion for summary judgment because 6 documents pertaining to the revocation of Mr. Cury’s visa are exempt from disclosure 7 under FOIA Exemption 3 and INA § 222(f). (State MSJ at 13-16.) Plaintiffs disagree.
 8 They urge the court to hold, instead, that visa revocation documents are outside the scope
 9 of Exemption 3 and INA § 222(f) and, as a result, State must produce the documents Mr.
 10 Cury requested. (See generally Pls. Resp.; Pls. Cross-MSJ.) The court agrees with State
 11 that the withholding of visa revocation documents is justified by Exemption 3 and INA
 12 § 222(f) and, for the reasons set forth below, grants State’s motion for summary
 13 judgment.⁵

 15
 16 ⁵ In the introduction to their response to State’s motion for summary judgment and their 17 cross-motion for summary judgment, Plaintiffs assert that State’s Vaughn index fails to provide 18 sufficient detail because it does not specify which documents were created before 2012 or 19 whether State withheld certain documents in part or in full under Exemption 3. (See Pls. Resp. at 20 2; Pls. Cross-MSJ at 2.) Plaintiffs do not, however, address the alleged deficiencies in the 21 Vaughn index in the argument portion of their response and cross-motion. (See generally Pls.
 22 Resp.; Pls. Cross-MSJ.) Plaintiffs also provide “[c]opies of documents that [they] know or suspect to still be in controversy” as attachments to their response and cross-motion, but neither explain the significance of the documents, nor discuss how the documents support their cross-motion for summary judgment or their opposition to State’s motion. (Pls. Resp. at 3; Pls.
 Cross-Mot. at 3; see Dkt. # 40-1 (exhibit A); Dkt. # 39 (sealed exhibits B and C).) Because it is unclear what relief Plaintiffs seek with respect to State’s Vaughn index, the court denies Plaintiffs’ cross-motion for summary judgment to the extent Plaintiffs seek an order that State’s Vaughn index is inadequate as a matter of law.

1 FOIA Exemption 3 protects from public disclosure records that are “exempted 2 from disclosure by statute,” if the statute at issue requires that the records be withheld “in 3 such a matter as to leave no discretion on the issue” or “establishes particular criteria for 4 withholding or refers to particular types of matters to be withheld[.]” 5 U.S.C.
 5 § 552(b)(3). INA § 222(f), meanwhile, provides that:

6 The records of the Department of State and of diplomatic and consular 7 offices of the United States pertaining to the issuance or refusal of visas or 8 permits to enter the United States shall be considered confidential and shall 9 be used only for the formulation, amendment, administration, or 10 enforcement of the immigration, nationality, and other laws of the United 11 States[.]

12 8 U.S.C. § 1202(f). It has long been established that INA § 222(f) is a qualifying statute
 13 under Exemption 3. See, e.g., Wiener v. F.B.I., 943 F.2d 972, 982 (9th Cir. 1991) (citing Medina-Hincapie v. Dep’t of State, 700 F.2d 737, 741–42 (D.C. Cir. 1983)). Plaintiffs 14 argue, however, that although INA § 222(f) may justify withholding documents 15 specifically relating to the “issuance or refusal” of a visa, it cannot be read to justify 16 withholding documents relating to the cancellation or revocation of a visa. (Id. at 4.)

17 The Ninth Circuit has not considered whether the protections of INA § 222(f)
 18 extend to visa revocation documents. As Plaintiffs acknowledge, however, the only two 19 Courts of Appeals to consider that question have held that they do. (See Resp. at 4.)

20 The Second Circuit was the first Court of Appeals to rule that documents relating 21 to the revocation of a visa “f[e]ll within the ambit of INA § 222(f).” Spadaro v. United States Customs & Border Prot., 978 F.3d 34, 45 (2d Cir. 2020). The Spadaro court 22 observed that the “use of the word ‘pertaining’ ma[de] clear that the reach of the statute”

1 was wider “than mere issuances and refusals.” Id. at 46. Applying this broad 2 interpretation of “pertaining to” to visa revocation records, the court concluded that “it
 3 [was] clear that the revocation of a visa pertains to the issuance of a visa because they are 4 so closely related – namely, a revocation constitutes a nullification of that issuance.” Id.
 5 Thus, because “the issuance and revocation of visas represent two sides of the same
 6 coin[,]” id. (quoting Soto v. U.S. Dep’t of State, No. 14-604 (RDM), 2016 WL 3390667,
 7 at *4 (D.D.C. June 17, 2016)), the Second Circuit held that “the plain language of INA
 8 § 222(f) encompasses revocation documents.” Id. Four years later, the Eleventh Circuit
 9 adopted Spadaro’s reasoning and held that visa revocation documents “unambiguously 10 fall within the ‘pertaining to’ scope of § 222(f) and must be kept confidential.” Jimenez
 11 v. Dep’t of Homeland Sec., 119 F.4th 892, 910 (11th Cir. 2024). The court finds Spadaro 12 and Jimenez persuasive, and holds that visa revocation documents are within the scope of 13 INA § 222(f) and are thus exempted from FOIA disclosure under Exemption 3.⁶

14 Plaintiffs urge the court to reject Spadaro and Jimenez and to follow instead three 15 pre-Spadaro district court cases that interpreted INA § 222(f) more narrowly. (Pls. Resp.
 16 at 4.) Plaintiffs’ cases, however, either are not on point or have been explicitly or 17 implicitly overruled. First, Plaintiffs direct the court to Guerra v. United States, No.
 18 C09-1027RSM, 2010 WL 5211613, at *2 (W.D. Wash. Dec. 15, 2010). Visa revocation
 19 records, however, were not at issue in that case. See generally id. Rather, the court held

20
 21 ⁶ Plaintiffs do not argue that records pertaining to visa cancellations should be treated 22 differently than records pertaining to visa revocations. (See generally Pls. Resp.; Pls.
 Cross-MSJ.) In any event, the court cannot identify any legally significant distinction between visa cancellations and visa revocations in the FOIA context.

1 that applications for J-1 hardship waivers⁷ did not fit within the “narrow compass” of 2 INA §222(f)’s exemption for records “pertaining to the issuance or refusal of visas[.]”
 3 Id. at *2. Second, Plaintiffs cite El Badrawi v. Dep’t of Homeland Security, in which the 4 District of Connecticut, relying on the canon of expressio unius est exclusio alterius,⁸ 5 reasoned that “while both ‘issuance’ and ‘refusal’ of visas are explicitly mentioned [in 6 INA § 222(f)], ‘revocation’ is not.” 583 F. Supp. 2d 285, 311 (D. Conn. 2008).
 7 Accordingly, the El Badrawi court concluded that visa revocation documents were 8 outside the scope of INA § 222(f) and were not exempt from disclosure. Id. The Second 9 Circuit, however, expressly overruled El Badrawi in Spadaro. Spadaro, 978 F.3d at 46-10 47 (declining to apply the expressio unius doctrine and rejecting the reasoning in El 11 Badrawi). Finally, Plaintiffs point to Mantilla v. U.S. Dep’t of State, in which the 12 Southern District of Florida also concluded that INA § 222(f) did not apply to visa

13
 14 ⁷ J-1 visas are issued to nonimmigrants, including students, scholars, and summer 15 workers, who have been approved to participate in exchange visitor programs in the United 16 States. See U.S. Department of State – Bureau of Consular Affairs, Exchange Visitor Visa, <https://travel.state.gov/content/travel/en/us-visas/study/exchange.html> (last visited July 29, 2025). Absent a waiver, participants in exchange visitor programs must return to their home countries for at least two years before receiving certain other types of visas. See id.

17 ⁸ “The doctrine of expressio unius est exclusio alterius ‘as applied to statutory 18 interpretation creates a presumption that when a statute designates certain persons, things, or 19 manners of operation, all omissions should be understood as exclusions.’” Silvers v. Sony Pictures Entm’t, Inc., 402 F.3d 881 (9th Cir. 2005) (quoting Boudette v. Barnette, 923 F.2d 754, 756-57 (9th Cir. 1991)). “It is a fundamental canon[,]” however, “that where the ‘statutory text
 20 is plain and unambiguous,’ a court ‘must apply the statute according to its terms.’” *Wheeler v.
 City of Santa Clara*, 894 F.3d 1046, 1054 (9th Cir. 2018) (quoting Carcieri v. Salazar, 555 U.S.
 379, 387 (2009)). Because the court agrees that INA § 222(f) is unambiguous as it pertains to 21 visa revocation documents, it declines Plaintiffs’ invitation to apply the expressio unius doctrine here. See Soto, 2016 WL 3390667, at *4 (rejecting the expressio unius canon because the plain 22 text of the statute was clear that “records that document the revocation of a visa—or that were relied upon in the course of revoking a visa—could ‘pertain to the issuance or refusal of a visa.’” (quoting 8 U.S.C. § 1202(f)) (cleaned up).

1 revocation documents. No. 12-21109-CIV, 2012 WL 4372239, at *3 (S.D. Fla. Sept. 24, 2 2012). The Eleventh Circuit, however, implicitly overruled Mantilla when it held that 3 “visa revocation records unambiguously fall within the ‘pertaining to’ scope of § 222(f)
4 and must be kept confidential.” Jimenez, 119 F.4th at 910 (rejecting the plaintiffs’
5 reliance on the expressio unius canon). The court finds none of Plaintiffs’ cases
6 persuasive. Therefore, the court grants State’s motion for summary judgment and denies 7 Plaintiffs’ cross-motion for summary judgment.

8 IV. CONCLUSION

9 For the foregoing reasons, the court GRANTS State’s motion for summary
10 judgment (Dkt. # 21) and DENIES Plaintiffs’ cross-motion for summary judgment (Dkt.
11 # 40). The parties are ORDERED to file, by no later than August 13, 2025, a joint 12 statement identifying the issues, if any, remaining for the court’s determination and 13 proposing a plan for resolving those issues.

14 Dated this 29th day of July, 2025.
